Poetry.

Alice Cary's Sweetest Poem.

Among the beautiful pictures
That hang on Memory's wall
Is one of a dim old forest
That seemeth best of all;
Not for its gnarled oaks olden,
Dark with the mistletoe,
Nor for the violets golden,
That sprinkle the vale below;
Nor for the milk-white lilies
That lean from the fragrant hedge,
Coquetting all day with the sunbeams
And stealing their golden edge;
Not for the vines on the upland,
Where the bright red berries rest;
Not the pink nor the pale sweet cowslips,
It seemeth to be the best.

I once had a little brother
Whose eyes that were dark and deep,
On the lap of his old forest
He lieth in peace asleep.
Light as the down on the thistle,
Free as the winds that blow,
We roved there the beautiful summers,
The summers of long ago;
But his feet on the hills grew weary,
And one of the autumn eves
I made for my little brother
A bed in the yellow leaves.

Sweetly his pale arms folded
My neck in a sweet embrace,
As the light of immortal beauty
Silently covered his face;
And when the arrows of sunset
Looked in the treetops bright,
He fell in the saint like beauty
Asleep by the gates of light.
Thereof, of all the pictures
That hang on Memory's wall,
That one of the dim old forest
Seemeth the best of all.

THE LILY OF ST. ERNE.

BY L. CROW.

"Nonsense!" cried sturdy Max. "You are no Englishman if you refuse to listen to the truth; and you are no gentleman, Captain Renton, if you deny me any opportunity for exonerating myself from the charges you made against me the other night."

"Was this speech conned in the library last evening?" he was sarcastically asked. "Has your exculpation been arranged for you?"

Max smiled. "On the contrary; if I had been troubled with an excess of vanity, the interview of which you were a witness would have terribly mortified me, for I learned before it was half over, what by-the-by, I have long suspected, that you are a luckier fellow than you deserve to be."

"Explain yourself, Mr. Haverlyng; or is this intended as a fresh insult?" demanded the indignant Renton.

"I mean that if you had not permitted yourself to be too easily deceived by appearances, you would have comprehended all along that Miss Haydon and I are merely friends—cousins—nothing more." Captain Renton dashed his answer over not concern me; but, if you love each other as I believe you do, what keeps you apart?"

"What, indeed?" sighed the Captain, now wholly unbending. "I cannot tell. In my boyhood, her father encouraged us to like each other; and, though I lost sight of the family for some years after they left India, and Mr. Haydon died, yet, when I returned to England with my regiment, Eleanor gave me the warmest of welcomes. Neither does Mr. Penruan look coldly on me, though I am free to confess that I have nothing to live on but my pay, and, therefore, am no match for an heiress."

"Mr. Penruan does not seem to care who takes his stepdaughter off his hands," muttered Max. "He is a most incomprehensible sort of an old gentleman."

"You are not doing him justice," he was venemously assured. "Mr. Penruan may love money; I do not deny that; but under his harsh exterior he hides kind and generous emotions."

"Very glad to hear you say so," Max commented. "I began to have some doubts about it myself."

"Then let me give you an instance of his good feeling," cried Renton, eagerly. "When I first came down to the Abbey, I did not consider myself justified in acknowledging my affection for Eleanor until I had frankly acquainted her stepfather with the state of my heart. Instead of sneering at my presumption and forbidding me to see her again, he not only heard me with patience, but confessed that if he were in my place, he should not let her fortune frighten me away. He said that in my wandering life, I would of course be quite a blessing to have such a creature as Eleanor beside me, and plainly intimated that if she chose to become my wife, I need not fear any opposition from him."

"Very good of my excellent kinsman, really!" said Max, sarcastically. "The only thing that detracts from my admiration of his generosity is the fact that he has said much the same to me!"

"Then it must be as I suspected," the Captain moodily replied, "She has transferred her affections to you, and has won him over to her way of thinking."

"I do not believe it. Nay, I am positive that you are wrong. Eleanor Haydon warned me in the frankest manner that I must not be persuaded into making love to her, and I never have. Mr. Penruan's motives for what he does and says are mysteries to me; but I am willing to stake my life on the good faith and honest dealing of the young lady."

"But you saw how she received me. Can you assure me that her manner was only assumed to conceal some pique, and that she may be persuaded to become mine?"

The eager face of Max began to cloud. No; he could not give the required assurance, for had not Eleanor herself tearfully declared that she could never, never give her hand to Charlie Renton?

"Nonsense!" cried sturdy Max. "You are no Englishman if you refuse to listen to the truth; and you are no gentleman, Captain Renton, if you deny me any opportunity for exonerating myself from the charges you made against me the other night."

"I mean that if you had not permitted yourself to be too easily deceived by appearances, you would have comprehended all along that Miss Haydon and I are merely friends—cousins—nothing more."

Captain Renton dashed his cigar over the cliffs and laughed bitterly.

"Friends, who whisper together, who hold secret meetings, who have no eyes, no ears, no thoughts for anyone but each other? Thanks for the information. Did Miss Haydon bid you bring it to me? Am I to congratulate her on the friendship of such an honourable man as yourself?"

"I hope that you will do so when you know me better," said Max, composedly.

"Until I am conscious of having degraded myself by some mean or base act, I do not think that Eleanor will withdraw her kindly regard for me."

"If you do not wish me to strike you to the earth," exclaimed his exasperated auditor, "do not breathe that name again in my hearing!"

"Pshaw!" retorted Max, good-humouredly; "what is the use of all this talk? I neither intended to quarrel with nor fight you. In fact, after this morning, I am quite ready to promise that I will not intrude myself upon you, but go to St. Erne, and remain there as long as you choose to stay at the Abbey."

"Was this arrangement planned also?" he was asked, with a distrustful glance.

"No; it is my own idea entirely. Only sit down, and let me tell my story in my own way, and then, if you still choose to find fault with me, why, so be it. I shall do my best to undeceive you; and if you persist in being obstinate and wrong-headed, I cannot help it."

Ashamed of the violence that had so little effect on the impetuous Californian, Captain Renton resumed his seat, and lit another cigar. If he must hear what his successful rival had to say, why better get it over and have done with it.

Much to his surprise, Max took up his narrative from the moment at which they parted at the West End Hotel. He told how the name of Penruan Abbey, when mentioned by Renton himself, had awakened some vague reminiscences, and he produced the old pocket-book of his father, which he had searched till he found the entries in which John Penruan was mentioned.

Passing rapidly over his early rambles in Cornwall, and endeavors to find the friends of his father's boyhood, he proceeded to relate his first visit to the Abbey, his fall from the cliffs, and discovery, as he lay at the foot insensible, by Letty and Dan Calvack.

"With I first came down to the Abbey, I did not consider myself justified in acknowledging my affection for Eleanor until I had frankly acquainted her step-father with the state of my heart. Instead of sneering at my presumption and forbidding me to see her again, he not only heard me with patience, but confessed that if he were in my place, he should not let her fortune frighten me away. "But you saw how she received me. Can you assure me that her manner was only assumed to conceal some pique, and that she may be persuaded to become mine?"

The eager face of Max began to cloud. No; he could not give the required assurance, for had not Eleanor herself tearfully declared that she could never, never give her hand to Charlie Renton?

"By San Jago?" he explained, vexedly; "it is ill meddling with what does not concern me in this country, for every affair that I have been mixed up with has proved a tangled coil that defied me to unravel. When I have said that I am certain Eleanor loves you I must pause, for I am as much in the dark as to the cause of her coldness as you can be. Go to her boldly, man, and learn it from her own lips."

But Renton did not rise from his despairing attitude.

"It is useless. I have done so more than once, but to no purpose. I came here to seek to win the old kind looks from her eyes—to hear her speak my name as she used to do, but in vain. Always the same chilling reception, always the same regrets that I persist in wasting my time in these visits; till at last, in obtained and despairing, I resolve to depart, and vow that I will do my best to forget her. But some relenting whisper when we are parting, some mournful yet tender glance, always revives the belief that she still loves me, and this belief strong hews instead of fading with distance. And so I come here again, and try again, to endure the same alternation of hopes and fears; to think her at one moment the most heartless of coquette, and at the next to ask myself if there is not some reason for her conduct, when I cannot learn before I condemn her."

"It must be a very miserable way of going on," said Max sympathetically; "and were I in your place, I should not rest till I had searched to the bottom of the matter."

You speak as if that were easy to do; as if I had not to remonstrate with a capricious girl, and prevail upon her to tell me her secret thoughts. But it is not so. When I press Eleanor on the subject, she either bursts into tears, and flies my presence, or else laughingly reminds me that she has already declared we can never be united, and insists that I shall cease to persecute her."

"And you throw yourself into a jealous rage, there is a tableau, and the curtain falls! Ay, to me, and I know not how to advise you, except that, were I in your place, I would persevere."

"How can you say any reason for saying this?" asked Charlie, catching like a drowning man at a straw. Has Eleanor said any

CHAPTER XVI.

DOWN THE CHIMNEY OR THROUGH THE KEY-HOLE.

She met them at dinner, radiant with smiles, and looking so 'charming' in her demi-toilette, that Max was not surprised at the infatuation Charlie Renton evinced for the lovely but insupportable girl; a girl far more difficult to understand than even Letty, for, unlike the latter, she appeared to be endowed with all that should have made her life a happy one.

She had had a delightful ride, she told them, and brought Ursula Minor back to his stable so tired, and in consequence so tractable, that the grooms scarcely knew him.

"He will break your neck some day, and then there will be an end to your wild freaks!" the Squire observed coarsely, as he helped his lady to some fish.

"I hope not, sir, for your sake!"
Eleanor sarcastically replied. "I know how deeply you would mourn my loss,
and what an expense it would be to you
to put the servants in black!"

Mrs. Penruan dropped her fork, and evinced hysterical symptoms.

"If you two will persevere in saying such horrid things to each other," she sobbed,
"I know I shall be seized with spasms or convulsions! It's very cruel of you, Eleanor, when you know how fond I am
of turbot, and that I shall not be able to touch a bit, and all through your dreadful speeches!"

"Pray go on with your dinner, mamma," said the young lady; "I would not spoil your enjoyment of the turbot on my account. I forgot that you were here when I spoke."

"You are very considerate all at once!"
muttered Mr. Penruan, spitefully. "It isn't often that you profess to care who is annoyed by your ill-bred attempts to
be witty at my expense!"

"Yes," was the reply; "I must admit that I am not an apt scholar, or you, sir, would have taught me long since not to say what I think so readily!"

After this little sparring match, there was an awkward silence, till a melon was placed on the table with the desert, which drew from Max some remark relative to the fruits of his native soil.

"Splendid country, America!" said
the Squire, sentimentally. "Plenty of money to be made there! That's the place for young men of enterprise and energy!"

"I hope you are right, sir, though I have heard the remark contested," Charlie Renton exclaimed; "for I have serious thoughts of accepting a friend's invitation, and trying my own fortune
there."

"Dear me, Charlie! do you mean this?"
cried Mrs. Penruan, with dilated eyes.

As a result of the violence that had so little effect on the impetuous Californian, Captain Renton resumed his seat, and lit another cigar. If he must hear what his successful rival had to say, why, better get it over and have done with it.

Much to his surprise, Max took up his narrative from the moment at which they parted at the West End Hotel. He told how the name of Penruan Abbey, when mentioned by Renton himself, had awakened some vague reminiscences, and he produced the old pocket-book of his father, which he had searched till he found the entries in which John Penruan was mentioned.

Passing rapidly over his early rambles in Cornwall, and endeavors to find the friends of his father's boyhood, he proceeded to relate his first visit to the Abbey, his fall from the cliffs, and discovery, as he lay at the foot insensible, by Letty and Dan Calynack.

Then his tale was no longer hurried over. With all a lover's tenderness he dwelt upon the beauty and goodness of the Lily of St Erne; and though he said nothing of the mystery surrounding her, but left his hearer to infer that she was actually the young widow she represented, he did not hesitate to avow that he had given his heart away to this fair flower, before he beheld Eleanor of Penruan.

"But such a match would be beneath you!" exclaimed Charles Renton, who had become intensely interested.

"Why?—because she calls herself a fisherman's niece? Let me tell you that there is a rugged honesty and nobility about Dan Calynack. Letty is a lady by nature; what care I if she cannot boast of a long pedigree? And once back at Aguas Dolces, who would know whether my pretty English bride were peeress or peasant?"

"It seems, however, that since you transferred yourself from the cottage to Penruan Abbey, you have wavered in your alliance," said Renton, remembering his jealous suspicions.

"On my soul, I have not; nor would Miss Haydon have accepted my suit if I had been so hypocritical as to proffer it.
Bah, man! who are you eyes? Does a woman who loves admit a man into such familiar intimacy as she permits to me? never blushing when he touches her hand, nor hesitating to talk to him precisely as she would to her father or her brother? When she confessed to me last evening that she had been in agonies all day long we were disputing, were her tears for me! No, no! If you had knocked all the breath out of my body, as you threatened to do, she would have been too thankful for your escape, and too proud of your process, to have much pity to spare for my bruises."

"But she met you in the library. I heard the whisper that carried you there," retorted Charlie, but half convinced.

"Yes; that she might lay her royal command on me not to offend her hero.
What is there amiss betwixt you and Eleanor? Don't take offence at the question, there's a good fellow, nor fancy that I wish to interfere with what does here to seek to win the old kind looks from her eyes—to hear her speak my name as she used to do, but in vain. Always the same chilling reception, always the same regrets that I persist in wasting my time in these visits, till at last, maddened and despairing, I resolve to depart, and vow that I will do my best to forget her. But some relenting whisper when we are parting, some incommunate tender glance, always revives the belief that she still loves me, and this belief at length instead of fading with distance. And so I come here again, and try again, to endure the same alternation of hopes and fears; to think her at one moment the most heartless of coquette, and at the next to ask myself if there is not some reason for her conduct, when I ought to learn before I condemn her."

"It must be a very miserable way of going on," said Max sympathetically; and were I in your place, I should not rest till I had searched to the bottom of the matter."

You speak as if that were easy to do;
as if I had but to remonstrate with a capricious girl, and prevail upon her to tell me her secret thoughts. But it is not so.
When I press Eleanor on the subject, she either bursts into tears, and flies my presence, or she haughtily reminds me that she has already declared we can never be united, and insists that I shall cease to persecute her."

"And you throw yourself into a jealous rage, there is a tableau, and the curtain falls! Ay, de mi, and I know not how to advise you, except that, were I in your place, I would persevere."

"How can you say any reason for saying this?"
asked Charlie, catching like a drowning man at a straw. Has Eleanor said any thing that induces you to give me this encouragement?"

Max shook his head.

"This is a house of secrets, and I am in no one's; neither am I the wisest of councillors for a lover hot-headed enough already to run a tilt with every one who gets in his way."

"Captain Renton held out his hand.

"I have not used you well by my suspicions, Mr. Haverlyng, but you must forgive me; for such anxiety as I have been enduring during the last few months makes a fellow ill-natured and ungrateful against his will."

Max took the hand extended to him, and gripped it cordially.

"Eleanor bade me persuade you to accompany me to California when I return.
What say you to appeasing as if you acquiesced in the plan? Perhaps the thought that you are leaving her for ever, may throw her off her guard, and give you the advantage you seek."

The advice was considered good.
Captain Renton had suffered so much through Eleanor Haydon's inexplicable conduct, that he would not be sorry to turn the tables upon her, if it were possible.

"Nay," he exclaimed, firmly, "I will not only say that I intend leaving England, but I will positively be the companion of your voyage, if you will put up with me. It is degrading myself to come here, urging a suit to which I obtain nought but denials. Eleanor shall either consent to be mine, or I will try whether, in change of scene, I cannot forget her."

Max applauded the resolution, and Renton was striding away to carry it into effect, when the sound was heard of horse's hoofs, and Eleanor came canter-ing along the cliffs on the back of the restive brute she denominated Ursula Minor.

With much difficulty, she reined him in as she drew near the gentleman; and Captain Renton, seeing how troublesome the horse appeared, would have gone to it head, but she sharply bade him keep back.

"Thanks for your good intentions, sir;
but my steed is like his mistress—he will not brook any interference," she cried, saucily.

and what an expense it would be to you
to put the servants in black!"

Mrs. Penruan dropped her fork, and evinced hysterical symptoms.

"If you two will persevere in saying such
horrid things to each other," she sobbed,
"I know I shall be seized with spasms or convulsions!" It's very cruel of you,
Eleanor, when you know how fond I am
of turbot, and that I shall not be able to touch a bit, and all through your dreadful speeches!"

"Pray go on with your dinner, mamma," said the young lady; "I would not spoil your enjoyment of the turbot on my account. I forgot that you were here when I spoke."

"You are very considerate all at once!"
muttered Mr. Penruan, spitefully. "It isn't often that you profess to care who
is annoyed by your ill-bred attempts to
be witty at my expense!"

"Yes," was the reply; "I must admit
that I am not an apt scholar, or you, sir,
would have taught me long since not to say what I think so readily!"

After this little sparring match, there was an awkward silence, till a melon was placed on the table with the desert, which drew from Max some remark relative to the fruits of his native soil.

"Splendid country, America!" said
the Squire, sentimentally. "Plenty of money to be made there! That's the pledge for young men of enterprise and energy!"

"I hope you are right, sir, though I have heard the remark contested," Charlie, Renton exclaimed; "for I have serious thoughts of accepting a friend's invitation, and trying my own fortune
there."

"Dear me, Charlie! do you mean this?"
cried Mrs. Penruan, with dilated eyes.
"Going to America! Do you hear what he says, Eleanor? Why, I always thought—"

"You are spilling your wine, mamma!
Shall I peel an apricot for you?" her daughter hastily interposed, with a glance which, though the obtuse lady could not understand, told her that she had made a mistake, and must be silent.
She, therefore, said no more, but relieved her mind by sighing and groaning every time there was a break in the conversation.

Mr. Penruan seemed greatly interested in the plans of his guest, questioning him upon them till the young man, who had not formed any, grew quite confused, in spite of the prompting of Max, who sat opposite.

At last the Squire turned suddenly to his step-daughter. "Eleanor, we have not heard your opinion on this new scheme! What do you say about it?"

For a moment her voice failed her, but she quickly regained composure. "What can I say, except that it appears an excellent one? I have always thought that Captain Renton was capable of better things than snuffering about the streets of a garrison town, or drilling raw recruits, or playing at the mimic war as I have seen our soldiers doing at Aldershot."

"Would you prefer to see me engaged in real warfare?—doing my best to get rid of an arm or a leg?" asked Charlie, with affected jocularity.

"No, indeed; but I always fancy that a soldier's life in times of peace must be monotonous and unsatisfactory. The new States of America will surely afford better opportunities for employing your abilities."

"Yes," said the young officer, stung into bitterness by the indifference with which she spoke, "I may renounce every hope I once cherished, and bid my native country an eternal farewell, to become in another land a scoured, moody, discontented man. But what matter that if I amass money, keep out of the way of everyone who considers me a bore, and don't trouble my acquaintances in England with too many letters?"

"Your friends at Penruan will always rejoice to hear of your welfare," Eleanor bern me; but, if you love each I believe you do, what keeps it?"

"Indeed?" sighed the Captain, slyly unbending. "I cannot tell. In boyhood, her father encouraged me each other; and, though I lost the family for some years after India, and Mr. Haydon died, when I returned to England with my regiment, Eleanor gave me the warmest welcome. Neither does Mr. Penruan collude with me, though I am free to say that I have nothing to live on my pay, and, therefore, am no match for him."

Penruan does not seem to care for his stepdaughter off his hands," said Max. "He is a most incombustible sort of an old gentleman, and are not doing him justice," he earnestly assured. "Mr. Penruan has money; I do not deny that; but for his harsh exterior he hides generous emotions."

"I glad to hear you say so," Max retorted. "I began to have some doubts about it myself."

"Let me give you an instance of his feeling," cried Renton, eagerly. "I first came down to the Abey, to consider myself justified in regarding my affection for Eleanor as frankly acquainted her stepfather with the state of my heart. Insinuating at my presumption and urging me to see her again, he met me with patience, but confessed if he were in my place, he should not have fortune frighten me away. That in my wandering life, it is a curse be quite a blessing to have a creature as Eleanor beside me plainly intimated that if she became my wife, I need not fear competition from him."

"Good of my excellent kinsman," said Max, sarcastically. "The thing that detracts from my admiration of his generosity is the fact that he is much the same to me!"

"It must be as I suspected," the young man moodily replied, "She has never had her affections to you, and she has turned her back on her way of thinking."

"I do not believe it. Nay, I am positive you are wrong. Eleanor Haydon met me in the frankest manner and was not persuaded into making a mistake, and I never have. Mr. Penruan's motives for what he does and his mysteries to me; but I'm willing to let his life on the good faith and ending of the young lady."

"You saw how she received me," said Max, "and she assured me that her manner was intended to conceal some pique, and may be persuaded to become more friendly." Max began to cloud over and could not give the required answer, for had not Eleanor herself tearfully declared that she could never give her hand to Charlie Renton? "An Jago?" he exclaimed, vexed.

"I did; but were should not do so, until my affections were so with by the lady of my love."

"Played with—wantonly?" repeated, her eyes flashing. "But the next minute streaming with tears, and ere Max apologized for the offence he had committed, she had smartly whipped her horse, and was dashing along the road at a pace that left both the young men in terror for his safety."

An editor, going away, left his paper in charge of a minister. During the minister's stay in the sanctuary the following letter came from a mountain subscriber: "You know very well I paid my subscription to your paper the last time I was in Lexington. If I get any more such letters as I received from you last week, I will come down to Lexington and smash it—out of you!" The minister answered: "I have been trying to do that thing out of the editor for 10 years past, and if you will really come down and smash it out of him, then, my dear sir, I have 20 members of my church will also get you to operate on."

TRIUMPH IN HALIFAX

Public interest throughout the Dominion has, for the past week or two, been centered in the political contest going on in Halifax. Mr. Jones, the new Minister of Militia, was opposed in seeking re-election, by the united Tory forces of the Province, led by Dr. Tupper in person. His opponent, Mr. Richey, while a very popular man, was almost entirely dropped out of sight by the anxiety of the greater light of the party to secure another victory over the Government. Flattened by their success in Digby, every means was taken to gain another triumph, and the circumstances of the contest were such that Mr. Jones was able to secure his return by the slender majority of 24. The contest was a severe one, and that the result indicates the state of public feeling in the lower Provinces is altogether healthy. Mr. Jones is a man of ability, and while he brings considerable strength to the Government, the people of H. M. P. will have no reason to regret that choice, as he will be able, by carefully watching, to further their interests.

IN THE LINE

News from Europe shows the situation as critical. Russia's terms of peace have been accepted by Turkey without hesitation, but evidently having had more than enough of fighting. England and Austria, however, are hesitating about committing the argument. The British Government have asked for a war vote of six

As a contribution was made from the County of Huron, enclosing a memorial to the Legislature of Ontario to appropriate $100,000 for damages, and distribute among the municipalities at the rate of $25 a head, the Council of the said County, Huron, did not send a representative to the H. M. P. Council. As a result, the Council of the County of Huron, did not send a representative to the H. M. P. Council.

Mr. Storr presented and reported the special Committee appointed to enquire into the solvency of the Treasurer's funds, stating that the members were Messrs. S. Wright of South Fredericton, J. D. Ham, and D. Hooper, of Newburgh, and that upon careful enquiry they were found to be perfectly good and solvent.

Mr. Parrott said that he had signed the report as that of the Committee, and not as his individual opinion. He suggested that the amount of the County should be added. He had every confidence in the Treasurer, but thought they should be added in this case to their usual fund.

Mr. Tupper said that the amount of the County should be added. He had every confidence in the Treasurer, but thought they should be added in this case to their usual fund.

Mr. D. Hooper considered the County insolvent. Last year the difficulty had been to get any money out of him.

The report was adopted.

STANDARD REPRESENTATION

By Mr. D. Hooper, seconded by Mr. Tupper, the Treasurer's funds were suspended in the Committee, and the Treasurer was ordered to pay the amount of the County to the municipalities.

Mr. Wright, sec. by Dr. Tupper, presented a special Committee of eight, consisting of Messrs. Allison, D. Hooper, J. W. Bell, Joyner, and others, to enquire into the solvency of the Treasurer's funds, and to report as soon as possible to this Council during the present session, so that action (if any) may be taken before the local assessor have begun their work for the year.

Mr. Wright said that at the outset, he had no intention of interfering with the local assessors, but there was a feeling of uneasiness on a well established fact, and that he hoped to accomplish through the committee.

The motion was lost on the following vote:

YEAS—Messrs. Allison, Denison, Ham, Hornick, Huffman, Madden, Parrott, Piles, Shannon, and Wright.—10.

NAYS—Aylsworth, J. W. Bell, D. Hooper, Joyner, Lane, Lloyd, Oliver, and W. A. Bell, and Wood.—11.

The Council then adjourned until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

FIFTH DAY—MORNING SESSION

At 10 a.m. Friday, the Council resumed. All the members present. The minutes of yesterday were read and confirmed.

FINANCE REPORT

Dr. Storr presented the report of the Finance Committee, recommending no action on the communication from the Minister of Education, that the Clerk be paid $50, expenses in connection with the Revised by-law, and that the Treas. be instructed to collect the Newburgh debentures now due.

After some discussion the report was adopted.

PRINTING

Mr. Wright presented the report of the Committee on Education and Printing, recommending the payment of the following amounts: Printing, $33; Binding, $30.58, which was accepted.

DOG TAX

Mr. Wright brought in a by-law to regulate the dog tax, suspending the statute in relation to the dog tax, so far as it applied to the municipalities of Denbigh, Newburgh Island, and Bath. The by-law was read and passed, and ordered to be printed and sealed.

ASSESSMENT

Mr. Wright presented the report of the Committee on Assessment, recommending the suspension of the return of the Assessment Rolls to the 1st July was accepted and read a first time.

Mr. D. Hooper explained that the object of the Committee was to permit the assessors to return their rolls in May and June, instead of waiting until the 1st July, if any of the municipalities were assessed.

The report was read and accepted for the Municipal Council.

The amount of $1 was ordered to be paid to Messrs. George, messenger, and the Council adjourned until the second Tuesday in March next.

Happy thought

One of the encounters in Halifax between Mr. Jones and Dr. Tupper, the former brought down the house. We saw the incident the Halifax Chronicle's report. Mr. Jones then paid some attention to the Northern Railway Scandal and the Pacific Scandal, &c. Referring to the Pacific Scandal, he said an old farmer was in the habit of saying to him: "Mr. Jones, I believe in the Mackenzie Government and am a strong supporter of it, but I must tell you that I do not believe in the story about the late Government's Pacific Scandal." One being asked if the evidence was not clear that the late Government had done what they were accused of, the farmer

IN THE EAST.

News from Europe still reports situation as critical. Russia's terms of peace have been accepted by Turkey without hesitation, she evidently having had more than enough of fighting. England and Austria, however, are hesitating about confining the argument. The British Government have asked for a war vote of six millions as a precautionary measure, and is fully prepared to meet any engagement. The fighting operation in the field still continues, though every endeavor is being put forth to arrange an armistice, but the prospect of a satisfactory arrangement is very doubtful.

—In the House at Toronto the other evening, a lively set-to took place between the partnership leaders of the opposition. During the debate on the Upper Canada College Endowment, Mr. Macdougall took occasion to have a fling at Family Compact proceedings, when Mr. Cameron replied by indirectly styling his friend and colleague a "spoiler." The little episode caused considerable merriment on the other side of the House.

...$100,000 for damages, and distribute among the municipalities at the rate of 52 per head, the balance of the surplus. Referred to a special Committee composed of Messrs. Ham, Deller, Aylsworth, Store, J. W. Bell, and Madden.

FINANCE.

Mr. Store presented the report of the Special Committee appointed to enquire into the solvency of the Treasurer's surpluses, stating that the surpluses were Messrs. S. Wright of South Fredericksburgh, J. D. Ham, and D. Hooper, of Newburgh, and that upon careful enquiry they were found to be perfectly good and sufficient.

Mr. Barrett said that he had signed the report as that of the Committee, and not as his individual opinion. He suggested that the amount of the security should be doubled. He had every confidence in the Treasurer, but thought they should proceed in this as in their own business.

Mr. Madden asked the amount of security.

Mr. Barrett said it was $1,000 and the Treasurer had $1,000.

Mr. Store said there had never been more than $84,000 in the Treasury at one time, except in 1863, and no debentures falling due for six years.

Mr. Deller considered the security sufficient. Last year the difficulty had been to get any money on hand.

The report was adopted.

NEWBURGH DEBENTURES.

Moved by Mr. Deller, sec. by Mr. Lloyd, that the Treasurer furnish a statement showing the number and amount of debentures due by Newburgh with interest thereon.

Mr. Deller said the County had advanced $500 to Newburgh to purchase seed grain, and taken debentures therefor. Two of these were due and had not been paid, and another would soon fall due, he would like to understand the matter.

The motion was withdrawn on the Finance Committee undertaking to report.

COUNTY PROPERTY.

Mr. Aylsworth presented the first report of the Committee on County Property, which recommended payment of the accounts of Michael Gleason, jail repairs, $1.50; Thomas Jamison, jail supplies, $29; E. Hooper & Son, $10.55; M. W. Pray & Son, $14.27; J. S. Sager, $11.94; and that a cheap clock be procured for the jail. The report was adopted.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Mr. Joyner presented the first report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges, which recommended that the petition of A. Walker, Camden, be laid over till the June session, that the communication of the Iron Bridge Company be filed, and that the amount of $1,000 be put down as a culvert, be paid by the corporation of Newburgh, and be charged to the appropriation of this year to Newburgh. The report was adopted.

HOSPITAL OF RELIEF.

Mr. Deller presented the report of the special Committee appointed to consider the communication from Huron in reference to a House of Refuge for incurables, in favor of the project, and recommending that a memorial be forwarded to the Lieut. Governor. The report was adopted.

NEWBURGH HIGH SCHOOL.

Moved by Mr. Lane, sec. by Mr. Shannon, that Allen Caton be appointed trustee of the Newburgh High School.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Madden, sec. by Mr. Store, that D. Hooper be re-appointed trustee.

The amendment was lost and the original motion carried.

PRINTING.

Moved by Mr. Denison, sec. by Mr. Lloyd, that the County printing for 1878 be let by tender.—Carried.

...Slee, Shannon, and Wright.—10.

SAYS.—Aylsworth, J. W. Bell, Deller, Deller, Joyner, Lane, Lloyd, Oliver, Store, W. A. Bell, and Wood.—11.

The Council then adjourned until 10 a.m. to-morrow.

FIFTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

At 10 a.m. Friday, the Council resumed. All the members present. The minutes of yesterday were read and confirmed.

FINANCE REPORT.

Mr. Store presented the report of the Finance Committee, recommending no action on the communication from the Minister of Education, that the Clerk be paid $50, expenses in connection with the Revised by-law, and that the Treas. be instructed to collect the Newburgh debentures now due.

After some discussion the report was adopted.

PRINTING.

Mr. Wright presented the report of the Committee on Education and Printing, recommending payment of the following accounts: EXPENSES, $63; Beaver, $30.38.—Report accepted.

DOG TAX.

Mr. Wright brought in a by-law to repeal the by-law suspending the statute in relation to the dog tax, so far as it affected the municipalities of Denbeigh, &c., Amherst Island, and Bath. The by-law was read and passed, and ordered to be signed and sealed.

ASSESSMENT.

On motion of Mr. Deller, sec. by Mr. Lloyd, Rule 35 was suspended, and a by-law to extend the time for the return of the Assessment Rolls to the 1st July was introduced and read a first time.

Mr. Deller explained that the object of the by-law was to permit the assessors to do their work in May and June, instead of during the winter, if any of the municipalities desired it.

The second reading was fixed for the March session.

The sum of $4 was ordered to be paid to Chas. George, messenger, and the Council adjourned until the second Tuesday in March next.

On being asked if the evidence was not clear that the late Government had done what they were accused of, the farmer replied: "Yes; that looks straight enough, but there is one thing that I cannot understand: it appears that there were hundreds of thousands of dollars of corruption money, and I have not seen any evidence of Tupper getting any of it; from what I know of Tupper I am sure that if there was anything like that around he would be sure to get a share. That's why I do not altogether believe in the story." (Rears of laughter.)

Happy thought

It is one of the encounters in Halifax between Mr. Jones and Dr. Tupper, the former brought down the house. We give the incident the Halifax Chronicle's report:—Mr. Jones then paid some attention to the Northern Railway Scandal the Pacific Scandal, &c. Referring to the Pacific Scandal, he said an old farmer whom he met lately said to him: "Mr. Jones, I believe in the Mackenzie Government and am a strong supporter of it, but I must tell you that I do not entirely believe in the story about the late Government's Pacific Scandal." On being asked if the evidence was not clear that the late Government had done what they were accused of, the farmer replied: "Yes; that looks straight enough, but there is one thing that I cannot understand: it appears that there were hundreds of thousands of dollars of corruption money, and I have not seen any evidence of Tupper getting any of it; from what I know of Tupper I am sure that if there was anything like that around he would be sure to get a share. That's why I do not altogether believe in the story." (Roars of laughter.)

Cold Barns.

There are exceptions, undoubtedly, but most of our farm barns are too cold. It is well to provide for ventilation, but we have too many panes of glass broken, and excuse our shiftlessness on the plea of ventilation. When building a barn for cattle, we should make the walls tight and then if there is danger of too little air inside on these cold, windy nights, a window may be left open an inch or two at the top. We have seen a few stables that needed small openings for ventilation, even in the coldest weather, but the number of such is very small, for where there is one that is too close, there are fifty that are too open. Newly built stables are now usually boarded and clapboarded, or the boards are jointed and matched, but many old barns are seen in all parts of the country with the covering boards nailed on with cracks between them from an eighth to a half inch in width. Perhaps they were laid closer when they were put on, but either on account of the boards being unseasoned, or wet, when laid, the joints are extremely open now. In such stables, we have seen the animals covered by white frost, or snow, one cold morning when the mercury was perhaps below zero. Now there can be no profit in keeping animals, unless they are well fed and well protected from the inclemencies of the weather.

It requires a certain amount of food to maintain the present condition, to repair the wastes of the body, and to keep up the animal heat. If an animal is kept in a barn so cold that a large proportion of its food is used up in maintaining animal heat, there can be little or no profit realized on the food consumed. Every warm-blooded animal converts a portion of its food into heat, and the more we can save this animal heat by the use of boards, the less food will be required, and as boards are cheaper than hay for keeping animals warm, it will pay to use them pretty freely.

A great deal of cold may be kept out of old stables by sheathing up on the inside, from the floor to the scaffolds, with matched boards. Cheap, sappy, unplanned boards will answer a good purpose, for such inside work, if the edges are jointed and matched. Such work may be done by almost any common laborer who can use a saw, hammer, and plane, and if taken under cover, one can keep warm at such work almost any day in winter. So we say again, our barns are too cold, and it will pay to make them warmer.—New England Farmer.

Cellars.

There ought to be no cellars under any human habitation. The dampness and mould, and foul air inseparable from ordinary cellars, will find their way into the upper parts of the building, and taint the air of every apartment, coming as these noisome cases will, through the seams of the floors and other openings. If cellars must be had, the following points should be taken in consideration: 1st. The bottom of the cellar should be at least six feet under ground, and the bottom stone of the foundation should be a foot deeper than the cellar floor, for as the earth has frozen in these latitudes, in 1876, as low down as five feet, it is necessary that the bottom should be below the point of frost. 2nd. The cellar may be a foot or two above the level of the ground, to afford the convenience of light and ventilation through windows better than grating. 3rd. A gravel sill is better for a cellar and foundation than clay, which is often treacherous and uncertain. The front stone of the foundation should, in all cases, be flat a broad, and the seams and

Tar Water For Insects.

For the last five years I have not lost a cucumber or melon, vine or cabbage plant. Get a barrel, with a few gallons of gas tar in it; pour water on the tar; always have it ready when needed, and when the bugs appear give them a liberal drink of the tar-water from a garden sprinkler, or otherwise, and if the rain washes it off and they return, repeat the dose. It will also destroy the Colorado potato beetle, and frighten the old long potato bug worse than a threshing with a brush. Five years ago this summer, both kinds appeared on my late potatoes, and I watered with the tar-water. The next day all Colorado beetles that had not been well protected sprinkling were dead, and the others, though their name was legion were all gone, and I have never seen one of them on the farm since. I am aware that many will look upon this with indifference, because it is so cheap and simple a remedy. Such should always feed both their own and their neighbors' bugs, as they frequently do.—Chicago Tribune.

Hunting a Wild Horse.

For several months a band of wild horses have been roaming over the plains in the vicinity of Pine Bluffs, forty miles east of here, drinking daily of the waters of Lodge Pole creek, a fine large stream near that place. The leader of the band is a large, elegantly proportioned, jet black stallion with sweeping raven mane and tail, fiery eye and majestic mien.

Five days ago a party of cattle herders decided to give chase to this wild monarch of the boundless plain, and mounting fresh and fleet steeds, set out upon his trail. They had arranged for frequent changes of animals, with the view of keeping him in that immediate vicinity, and wearing him out by giving him no rest.

The band of flyers was found, and then began the long and arduous struggle between men used to the ways of wild horses and cattle, skilled in every device of "cutting out," "rounding up," &c., and an untamed rover of the plains, full of subtle equine strategy, of wonderful speed and incalculable nerve, bottom and powers of endurance.

For five days and nights has the chase continued. Several of the herders' horses have been killed by riding, but when our informant left Pine Bluffs yesterday morning the noble stallion was prancing around at the head of a band of tame horses, seemingly as fresh and vigorous as though he had never known fatigue. On the second day he separated from his wild companions, and has since been kept away from them.

Mr. Cole, the leader of the pursuers, is confident that he will yet capture the magnificent steed, and proposes to follow him to the end. Several wild horses have been captured in the vicinity during the past year.

A Wealthy Country.

All intelligent travellers who have visited Brazil speak in the most glowing terms of the country. Prof. Agassiz regarded it as the most productive and interesting country on the globe, and the one in which it is easiest to obtain a livelihood. Some who have sailed up the Amazon declare that a vessel can be loaded with Brazil nuts at the expense of only a few pence per bushel. These constitute a valuable article of commerce, while the oil extracted from them is very desirable. All the tropical fruits are produced in Brazil almost without cultivation. The soil in many parts of the country will produce twenty successive crops of cotton, tobacco, or sugar cane without application of manure. No country in the world approaches the land of Don Pedro in the variety of its forest productions. Prof. Agassiz states that he saw one hundred and seventeen different kinds of valuable wood that were cut from a piece of land not half a mile square. They represented almost every variety of color, and many of them are capable of receiving a high polish. One tree furnishes wax that is used for candles; another a pitch that is used for food, and still another yields a juice which is used in the place of intoxicating liquor. There is a single variety of palm from which the natives begin the long and arduous struggle between them used to the ways of wild horses and cattle, skilled in every device of "cutting out," "rounding up," &c., and an untamed rover of the plains, full of subtle equine strategy, of wonderful speed and incalculable nerve, bottom and powers of endurance.

The interests of Europe and the interests of humanity, justice, freedom are one, and it is your proud privilege and sacred duty to defend them."

The Early Rising Delusion.

For farmers and those who live in localities where people can retire at eight or nine o'clock in the evening, the old notion about early rising is still appropriate. But he who is kept up till ten or eleven, or twelve o'clock, and then rises at five or six, because of the teaching of some old ditty about "early to rise," is committing a sin against his own soul. There is not one man in 10,000 who can afford to do without seven or eight hours sleep. All the stuff written about great men who slept only three or four hours a night is apocryphal. They have been put on such small allowances occasionally, and prospered; but no man ever kept health in the body and mind for a number of years with less than seven hours' sleep. If you can get to bed early, then rise early. If you cannot get to bed till late then rise late. It may be as proper for one man to rise at eight as another to rise at five. Let the ringing bell be rung at least thirty minutes before your public appearance. Physicians say a sudden jump out of bed gives irregular motion to the pulses. It takes hours to get over too sudden rising. It is barbarous to except children to instantly land on the floor at the call of their nurses, the thermometer below zero. Give us time after you call us to roll over, gaze at the world full in the face and look before we leap.

A Wealthy Country.

All intelligent travellers who have visited Brazil speak in the most glowing terms of the country. Prof. Agassiz regarded it as the most productive and interesting country on the globe, and the one in which it is easiest to obtain a livelihood. Some who have sailed up the Amazon declare that a vessel can be loaded with Brazil nuts at the expense of only a few pence per bushel. These constitute a valuable article of commerce, while the oil extracted from them is very desirable. All the tropical fruits are produced in Brazil almost without cultivation. The soil in many parts of the country will produce twenty successive crops of cotton, tobacco, or sugar cane without application of manure. No country in the world approaches the land of Don Pedro in the variety of its forest productions. Prof. Agassiz states that he saw one hundred and seventeen different kinds of valuable wood that were cut from a piece of land not half a mile square. They represented almost every variety of color, and many of them are capable of receiving a high polish. One tree furnishes wax that is used for candles; another a pitch that is used for food, and still another yields a juice which is used in the place of intoxicating liquor. There is a single variety of palm from which the natives obtain food, drink, clothing, bedding, ing, cordage, fishing tackle, medicine and the material they manufacture into dwelling, weapons, harpoons, and musical instruments. Doubtless the day is not far distant when the valuable woods of Brazil will be used for various useful and ornamental purposes.

Winter care of Poultry.

No one who does not take an interest in poultry can expect many eggs in cold weather, or when the ground is covered with snow, and the fowls can find little but what is given them. I believe with proper attention to keeping the roosting-clean, good shelter and a varied diet, disease would be unknown. To promote laying, feed alternately wheat, buckwheat, boiled oats, scalded bran, sometimes seasoned with pepper, and a little corn occasionally. Onions chopped fine, and mixed with their food, are an excellent stimulant, and promote health; and if on hand, thick, sour milk, placed where they can drink it, is also relished. I find that twenty-five hens take a bucket three-quarters full daily, and they seem to thrive on it. When milk is not on hand, keep clean water always within their reach. Crushed oyster shells and gravel, and a place to dust themselves are also necessary. These directions are for cold weather, and when the ground is covered with snow. I have been getting forty cents a dozen in market for eggs, from my Light Brahma hens, for a month or more. Our market man says they bring 5 cents a dozen more than eggs of the Leghorns or smaller breeds; being much larger, they are taken first. No fowls can stand the cold weather, or lay better with the above care, than the Light Brahmas. They are suited to thickly-settled neighborhoods and easily kept from your neighbors' flower-bed in summer.

FANCIER

MILD WINTERS.—It is a remarkable coincidence that the decades of 1798, 1808, 1818, 1828, 1838, 1848, 1858, 1868 and 1878 should be productive of mild winters, which fact renders it possible that some system exists which astronomers have not studied up, interests of Europe and the interests of humanity. Justice, freedom are one, and it is your proud privilege and sacred duty to defend them."

The Early Rising Delusion.

For farmers and those who live in localities where people can retire at eight or nine o'clock in the evening, the old notion about early rising is still appropriate. But he who is kept up till ten or eleven, or twelve o'clock, and then rises at five or six, because of the teaching of some old ditty about "early to rise," is committing a sin against his own soul. There is not one man in 10,000 who can afford to do without seven or eight hours sleep. All the stuff written about great men who slept only three or four hours a night is apocryphal. They have been put on such small allowance occasionally, and prospered; but no man ever kept health in the body and mind for a number of years with less than seven hours' sleep. If you can get to bed early, then rise early. If you cannot get to bed till late then rise late. It may be as proper for one man to rise at eight as another to rise at five. Let the ringing bell be rung at least thirty minutes before your public appearance. Physicians say a sudden jump out of bed gives irregular motion to the pulses. It takes hours to get over too sudden rising. It is barbarous to expect children to instantly land on the floor at the call of their nurses, the thermometer below zero. Give us time after you call us to rollover, gaze at the world full in the face and look before we leap.

Leave the Neck Bare.

An exchange gives the following excellent advice:—"Every one must remark that a favourite article of winter clothing for children is a comforter swathed around the neck. This is a great error; the feet and the wrists are the proper members to keep warm; the face and throat will harden into healthy indifference to cold; but that muffler, exchanged for an extra pair of thick socks and knitted gloves, would preserve a boy or girl really well and warm. Bronchitis and sore throat have declined fifty per cent. since the absurd use of high collars and twice round handkerchiefs went out of fashion; and if the poor would take better care of their children's feet, half the infantile mortality would disappear. It only costs a trifle to put a piece of thick felt or cork into the bottom of a boot or shoe, but the difference is often considerable between that and a doctor's bill, with perhaps the undertaker's beside."

The report of the President of Michigan University says:—"The proportion of women to men scarcely changes from year to year. The women form a little less than nine per cent. of the whole number of students. It is gratifying to see how readily the more gifted young women who have graduated here, especially those who have taken the full classical course, have secured conspicuous positions as teachers in the high schools, seminaries of advanced grade and colleges for women. In those positions they are justifying the wisdom of the regents who opened to them the opportunities for a thorough collegiate training, and are doing their full best in earning a reputation for the University."

The doctrine of eternal punishment was taken for a subject by no less than fifteen preachers in New York on Sunday last. Some wholly repudiated the orthodox teaching, others insisted on or suggested various modifications, while others, again, strongly defended the old belief. The most pronounced among these last was Dr. Talmage, who said that there could be no compromise, and that men must throw their unbelief overboard, or else throw the Bible overboard and cease all pretence of believing in Divine revelation.

NATURAL SELECTIONS.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An interior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outlived the others. There sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported finds up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By reason of its Alternative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula, or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers, or Old Sores; Blotches Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequalled remedy for Biliousness; Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficient, in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow colour of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from "Torpid Liver," or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch, which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one of the greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plaster they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant ones applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TIC DOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS, PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST; and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long-continued Consumption.

MANHOOD: HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

sell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of many different diseases has been caused by application as the present. It is an undoubted fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plaster.

The principal ingredients used in making these are Gum Olibanum—or better known as Incense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burdock Root, which, when scientifically combined, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be the greatest healing medium ever brought to the human race.

It is acknowledged by all who have used it, to act quicker than any other Plaster they have tried, and that one of these Plasters more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect; but with these it is entirely different; the moment applied the patient will feel its effect.

It possesses all the soothing, warming, suppurating and strengthening qualities of all others. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, GOUT, SCIATICA, and various pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, have it solely done by the electrical action which the Porous Plaster contains, and is imparted to the system, thus restoring it to a healthy condition.

It is very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS, IN THE SIDE AND BREAST; and are able to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long Consumption.

MANHOOD: LOST, NOW RESTORED!

have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culvertwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (with Medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Impairment, Impediments to Marriage, resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or stage stamps. Celebrated author, of this admirable Essay, demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences can be radically cured without the dangerous internal medicine or the application of force; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by means of which sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may himself cheaply, privately and radically cure himself.

This Lecture should be in the hands of youth and every man in the land.

—The Georgia Minstrels drew a full house on Wednesday evening. Their programme was well received, and equal to that of any similar troupe on the road.

—The Young People's Literary Society, in connection with the C. M. Church, will give another of their popular entertainments on Monday evening, Feb. 11th.

Markets

In support of the Dunkin Bill, will be addressed by C. I. J. Hickman at the following places: Friday, February 1st, at Odessa; Monday, February 4th, M. E. Church, Napanee.

Skating.

No lack of Rinks at present. Morgan's Napanee Rink is in full blast, and R. Richard-son, Esq., has opened a Rink a short distance below the Big Mill. Morgan intends holding a Carnival soon, should the weather prove favorable enough to make it a paying speculation.

E. King Dodds.

This great head-centre of the Anti-Dunkinites, will speak at Napanee in the Music Hall, on Saturday the 2nd inst., at 2 p.m. On Monday the 4th February, at Odessa Drill Shed at 2 p.m. A lively debate may be expected, as Joseph Gibbons, Esq., of Ingersoll, is expected to meet him.

Mrs. Youmans.

Meetings in behalf of the Dunkin bill will be addressed by Mrs. Youmans at the following places: Amherst Island, Friday Feb. 1st; Amherst Island, Saturday, Feb. 2nd. The temperance pledge will be presented at every meeting for signatures. A collection will be taken in behalf of the funds of the County Dunkin Association.

The Market Tolls

Trimble, $20; No. 2, J. S. Sagar, $20; No. 6, R. Collins, $20; No. 7, Jas. Chafferson, $20. These figures are the same as last year.

M. E. Church.

Quarterly Services in the M. E. Church, Napanee, next Sabbath morning.

—Remember the Concert by the M. E. Sabbath School, to be held in the basement of the Church to-night. An excellent programme.

—The man who attempts to keep a thermometer record this winter needs a thorough knowledge of double-entry book-keeping.

—On Thursday morning when Andrew Wycott, of Odessa, was fined $20 and costs for selling liquor without a license. H. T. Forward, J. P., had charge of the case, which was preferred by the License Inspector.

—The schools were closed on Wednesday after noon out of respect for the memory of Mrs. Magee, a former teacher, who died at Uxbridge on Monday, and was interred here in the family burial place. Much sympathy is felt for friends in their bereavement.

—The 17th lecture in the course to young people, by Rev. Dr. Hartley will be delivered next Sunday evening. SUBJECT—"Immortality of the Soul." The lecture last Sunday entitled the "Convenient Season," was an eloquent powerful appeal to the congregation.

Bogus.

Counterfeit fifty-cent pieces, dated 1871, are in circulation, and merchants and others should be on the lookout for them. The coin is made of inferior metal, very thinly silver-plated. The maple leaf on the reverse side is a little indistinct near the edges, and the milling around the edge is not so clear cut as in the genuine coin.

Bogus $10 notes of the Ontario Bank are in circulation in London.

Dominion Bank Agency.

The Bank of British North America having withdrawn their agency, the business has been transferred to the Dominion Bank, with Mr. R. A. Helliwell as Agent, who has had a large banking experience. A Savings Department has been established in connection with the Branch, and deposits as low as one dollar will be received at four per cent. per annum.

Illicit Whiskey--Addington.

The following cases were tried at Tamworth, on the 26th inst., before Justices Neely and Cousins: Patrick McLaughlin, Tamworth, $20—costs, $9.55; Richard Douglass, Tamworth, $20—costs, $11.97; Sampson Shields, Tamworth, $20—costs, $9.55; R. B. Hope, Newburgh, $20—costs, $9.70; Catherine Trayner, Colebrook, $20—costs, $10. All the above fines and costs to be paid on the first day of February, or in default, 30 days. They all pleaded not guilty, as usual.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

The Temperance people of the County purpose getting up a grand demonstration in honor of Col. Hickman, in special recognition of the valuable and important services rendered by him during the present campaign. None have labored as hard throughout the conflict as he. His efforts are solely disinterested, financially speaking, and the success which has attended him in every section, is good evidence of his popularity. The demonstration will probably be held on Thursday next, in Napanee. Full announcements will be made.

Juvenile Precocity.

Mr. J. F. Knight, a clerk five years in the employ of Mr. James Aylsworth, issuer of marriage licenses, Tamworth, became deeply enamored of a susceptible young lady in that village. He filled out a blank license, forged Mr. Aylsworth's name and deposited $2 in the till as payment. The couple were married in Selby, the turn-out good. I do not know of any that had been taking prophylaxis in order to prepare themselves to do out the infectious provisions, yet I presume all partook freely of the same, and were well satisfied. After gathering together the fragments, Wm. C. Scott, Esq., Editor of the EXPRESS, was introduced to the Chair. The speaker of the evening, Rev. Dr. Hartley, then took the stand, and delivered his lecture on "Matrimony," one of the most interesting and amusing ever delivered in this village. It was so extravagant to offer eulogies to Dr. Hartley as a lecturer, being that he is so well-known in that capacity. On the same evening Tamworth was supplied with other talented speakers. At Shields' Hall, Mr. Brooks, the favorite anti-Dunkin advocate, spoke in favor of the liquor traffic. Mr. Roe, here as elsewhere, ably refuted his arguments and set him in the eyes so tight that he could hardly breathe. Even Brooks' own supporters acknowledge this. It would be a case if Mr. Roe was to squeeze the breath out of him.

—Conundrum—When a business man finds half-a-dozen customers or so sitting about his counter, what proportion do the assets bear to the liabilities of his concern.

Oh! for the Dunkin Bill, it is a bankum Bill calling up men and money. Men who own acres, whiskey partakers. Against the law breakers to testify.

Fully a score of them, perhaps a few more of them.

All brought before a man—James, of the Peace; he who arraigns them thus, still remains strange to us.

That would make such a fuss just for his fees.

Pa, Dick, and Sampson owned the corn, that they'd sold many a horn.

Will again, shure as your born, watch them and see;

Twenty and costs for each, and quite within their reach;

This should a lesson teach—ninety for three. Sampson objected strong, he was fined—right or wrong.

Friends could not shield him from Justices decree; Now he must pay the bill, the coffers of state to fill.

Borely against his will—twenty the fee.

Next fined was Pat and Dick, Noses as red as a brick, all the year through;

Are there (can any tell?) amongst those who drink, How much these three men sell; drink us, can you?

—It grieves me to have to chronicle the death of an old resident of this place, Mr. Bernard Lucy, Sr., aged 65 years, who died Jan 23rd, of apoplexy, produced by a hurt which he got some four years ago, which rendered him helpless. He was well known and highly respected. His remains were followed to the grave by a train of carriages reaching over a mile. Mr. Lucy was one of the early pioneers of Sheffield; having settled here when it was a howling wilderness. He carved out a home for himself and reared a large family. He will long be remembered as a good citizen, good neighbor and a steadfast friend, and the universal expressions of sympathy was, that a good man had gone to his repose.

Col. Hickman delivered a speech in the M. E. Church, to a crowded audience on Thursday evening last, and was listened to with profound attention, each one feeling a satisfaction seldom enjoyed; Every available space was crammed with suffocation. The Colonel arose to the necessities of the occasion, his voice clear and distinct penetrated to the most distant part of the room. The arguments he advanced were self evident, and were certainly never surpassed: "And those who came to laugh remained to pray." This was no idle vaporing, but facts illustrated with pictures drawn from real life. "So old and yet so new." I saw men in the audience whose lives labor had gone out from them and their families and homes; bow down their heads whilst tears ran down their faces when the picture of their own lives was brought back vividly before them, cherished hopes and mis-spent earnings which had all gone to enrich the dealer in liquor. NAPANEE E.

WAR NEWS.

Thursday.

There are no new operations in field. The Grand Duke Nicholas is Kezanlik to-day for Adrianople, where will arrive on Sunday. In East Bulgaria the Turks are evacuating, and Osman Bazar, and the Russians have succeeded in destroying communications between the former and Shumla.

A new Greek Ministry has been formed, with Comourdours, who belong to the war party, as President of the Council and Minister of the Interior.

Friday.

At the seat of war affairs are in an exceedingly mixed condition. There rumors of the failure of the armistice negotiations—counterbalanced by statement that the peace conditions have been received and are surprising, one by their unexpected moderation. Russia, however, insists upon the cession of a portion of Constantinople making no objection, however, to the presence of the British fleet in the C. Horn during her tenancy of the Bat to this the Porte is unwilling to accede, and the news of last night's meetings in the British Parliament, undoubtedly strengthen it in its preparations for the defence of the and of the Bosphorus. Gallipoli are actively prosecuted, and the Otto fleet has been ordered to Balaia.

Monday.

It is now announced that the preliminaries of peace have been signed, that the Grand Duke Nicholas and Turkish plenipotentiaries were to have arrived at Adrianople on Saturday, given by the London Post, the conditions of peace include the autonomy of Serbia, Bosnia, and Herzegovina, the dependence of Servia and Roumania, an accession of territory to each—latter ceding to Russia the region at mouth of the Danube; the agrument of Montenegro, the session of Batoum and the payment of a war indemnity, and an arrangement with the Porte by which the latter will undertake to protect Russian interests in the mouth of the passage of the Dardanelles.

A despatch from Constantinople in consequence of not receiving countermanding order in time, the British fleet sailed from Besika Bay and passed through the Dardanelles. The batteries saluted the English flag as vessels passed. The fleet is now proceeding to Constantinople. The above despatch has created a decided sensation in official circles in London.

A later despatch from Constantinople says the fleet stopped at the mouth of Dardanelles, and orders being received it will return to Besika Bay.

Intense excitement prevail in Greece over the news of the conclusion of peace. Riotous demonstrations in favour of have been held at Athens, where a crowd of over ten thousand persons broke windows of the Ministers' residence. The Chamber in secret session, has solved to support the insurrection in Thessaly and Crete.

Groundless Objections.

Some having tried "put up" medicine without obtaining the relief promised, indiscriminately condemn them. Is it fair? Suppose a judge should argue because the last three prisoners had been found guilty, he should condemn the fourth without trial. Is not reasoning absurd? And yet are those who condemn all medicines, cause they have been deceived in one two, equally as unjust? The fact medicines manufactured by R. V. P.

...a load of straw. The horses were poorly shod, so that it was impossible to hold back, and the road was quite slippery. The tongue falling from the neck yoke caused the horses to run, the wagon struck a telegraph pole, breaking it off, and threw Sherman and Edgar off the road. The horses—separated from the wagon—now dashed through the covered bridge, and ran against the west buttress of the railway bridge. One animal was severely bruised and the other (a grey mare) instantly killed by striking her forehead against the solid masonry. Mr. Sherman, the owner of the team, was conveyed to Dr. Bristol, who found a fracture of his right ankle bone. The injured man will remain helpless for several weeks.

The Intermediate
At the last Intermediate examination, six pupils passed from our High School, not five as reported last week. The names are Orlin Herring, F. Blakeley, Samuel J. Mellow, Eleazer T. Williams, Fred Rutman, and Lucy Finch. Four passed on the Latin option, and two Miss Finch, and Mr. Mellow on the Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, and Book-keeping option. The Intermediate examination is a severe test upon pupils, the paper being the same as for a 2nd class provincial certificate, and the examination lasted a whole week. Our High School comes out well, being eleventh on the list of High Schools out of about one hundred. The number of pupils passed in all the schools and collegiate institutes was but 354 which is fewer than usual, and will make the grant per pupil higher in position to those schools that have passed pupils. The amount accruing to this school will be therefore about $249 from this source, and next term the prospects are that a class of nearly fifty candidates will be got ready, and fifteen half that number are successful it will bring quite a revenue to the school, as well as give it a prestige which will increase the grant from other sources.

Literary Society
The Napanee Literary Society is fast becoming one of the Institutions of our town. Starting something over a year ago, it already has enrolled among its members most of the literary talent of the town, while a number of young men who have taken an active part and deep interest in its proceedings, have made great progress in the art of speaking. Two of its valued members being called upon to leave town, the brethren resolved to tender them an oyster supper, in appreciation of their efforts in connection with the Society and worthy citizens. Accordingly invitations were issued, and at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening last, about thirty-five ladies and gentlemen assembled in the parlors of the Brice's House to do honor to the occasion. Supper was laid on the Dining Hall. Mr. G. M. Elliott, President, being seated at the head of the table, and Mr. Edwin Green, Vice President, occupying the second honorary position. After doing justice to the bountiful repast, the toast of "The Queen" was favored, followed by the "Gov. General and Lieut. Governor," responded to by Mr. Osborne. Following the example set on a previous occasion, "How may we best promote a literary taste," was proposed as a subject for discussion. The subject was ably dealt with by Messrs. Burrows, Mattheeson, Madden, Fraser, Chipman, Williams, and McGowan. The toast of "Our Guest" was responded to by Messrs. Bowerman and Gordon in a very feeling manner. "The Literary Society," was responded to by Messrs. Elliott and Green; "The Ladies," by Messrs. Shorey, James, Gilford, and Chapman; "The Press," by Messrs. Scott and Elliott. The evening's exercises were brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Syne." The evening was enjoyed by all present.

Morven George, Frederick Kaytor, Sr., Master; George Gordon, Overseer; T. B. German, Lecturer; Lewis Pretz, Steward; Chris. Kaytor, Asst. Steward; W. A. Bell, Chaplain; B. B. Van Styke, Treasurer; W. EXTRACT.—For persons suffering from exhaustion of the powers of the brain and nervous system, from long and continued study or teaching, or in those cases of exhaustion from which so many young men suffer, I know of no better medicine for restoration to health than "Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites."

EDWARD CLAY, M. D., Pittsburgh, N.S. Dr. Deal, who is a Veterinary Surgeon of great skill, writes from BOWNSVILLE Haverhill Co., Oct 1 have given Perry Davis' Pain Killer in many cases of Colic, Cramp and Dysentery in Horses, and never knew it to fail to cure in a single instance. I look upon it as a certain remedy.

MORVEN.

(From our Special Correspondent.)
The friends of Dunkin are working vigorously in their campaign, since the close of lectures of Col. J. J. Hickman, there has been a wonderful change in the public sentiment. Success is certain.

Mr. Jas. Johnson, having exchanged names with Mr. Michigan, has removed to his new home much to the regret of his many warm friends in this section.

The Quarterly Services of the M. E. Church, are to be held here next Sabbath, Preaching on Saturday, at 2 p.m. by Rev. Aylsworth, P. E., and on Sabbath morning by Rev. Dr. Hartley.

At a funeral in this region of county, The text was chosen from H. Kings, 20-1 and as the speaker proceeded to expound the doctrines therein contained, the entire congregation repeatedly burst in a flood of tears. At the close of the sermon Rev. D. Wilson, made some appropriate remarks when the discourse proceeded to the grave feeling the force of the solemn events of the day.

HAY BAY.

(From our special correspondent.)
Mrs. Youmans, delivered an able address in the M. E. Chapel Bethany, on Saturday evening last to an overflowed house, at the conclusion of which one hundred signatures were obtained to the Great Temperance Pledge.

Col. J. J. Hickman, delivered an address in the M. E. Church, Park's, last night to a packed congregation. People began to wend their way towards the church shortly after sundown, and when the distinguished orator arrived, the house was crowded to its utmost capacity. For two hours this mass of people was held spell bound by the sound and logical, pithy, eloquent appeals made in behalf of temperance. The lecture was occasion to allude to the dastardly accusations made against him in the Beaver, and to rebut which Rev. Mr. Stratton, read a letter from the Sec. of I. O. O. T. of Louisville Kentucky, showing the sacrifices the gentleman is positively making for the good of the cause. Conversations at Dunkin are progressing.

TAMWORTH.

(From our Special Correspondent.)
As previously announced, the tea-meeting in connection with the M. E. Church of this place, came off on Thursday evening, the 24th inst., at the Town temperance question. By the appearance at present, we may safely assert that the people of this vicinity are so stirred upon the Dunkin question, that when the trying day comes, it will have a large majority.

The horses—separated from the wagon—now dashed through the covered bridge, and ran against the west buttress of the railway bridge. One animal was severely bruised and the other (a grey mare) instantly killed by striking her forehead against the solid masonry. Mr. Sherman, the owner of the team, was conveyed to Dr. Bristol, who found a fracture of his right ankle bone. The injured man will remain helpless for several weeks.

The Horse.

Of the great number of men under the control of man, the horse unquestionably the most servile, but it is not strange that so many of our own horses, and who are dependent on their labor for a living, should need to give them that care and attention which their own interest no less than safety and comfort of the horse demand.

The best remedy for horses is "Bayer's Compound Powders and Arabian Horse Remedy," of this there can be no doubt—it is safe and easily given. Repeat the name, and see that the signature Hurd & Co. is on each package. N. Throp & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., p. prior for Canada. Sold by all medical dealers.

The first approaches of pneumonia are so insidious that thousands of men unconscious of its presence until it has brought them to the verge of a grave. The immediate use of "Bayer's Pulmonic Wafers" upon the first appearance of the cough, pain or soreness of the throat or chest, would generally elude a fatal result; therefore, when you take a cold, use "Bayer's Pulmonic Wafers," and thus prevent the danger for taking them in more dangerous complaints. To be obtained of druggists and country dealers at 25 cents box.

S. E. BURNELL, of Bradford On writer:—Last autumn I was afflicted with a severe cold which settled on my lungs and produced a chronic cough for which I gave tried a number of Cough Medicines, but without any benefit. I at last tried one bottle of Allen Lung Balm, which I now happily find able to state gave almost immediate relief, and performed a perfect cure in short time.

WAR NEWS.

Thursday.

There are no new operations in the field. The Grand Duke Nicholas leaves Kezanlik to-day for Adrianople, where he will arrive on Sunday. In Eastern Bulgaria the Turks are evacuating Rasgrad, and Osman Bazar, and the Russians have succeeded in destroying communications between the former place and Shumla.

A new Greek Ministry has been formed, with Comourdouros, who belongs to the war party, as President of the Council and Minister of the Interior.

Friday.

At the seat of war affairs are in an exceedingly mixed condition. There are rumors of the failure of the armistice negotiations—counterbalanced by the statement that the peace conditions have been received and are surprising everyone by their unexpected moderation. Russia, however, insists upon the occupation of a portion of Constantinople—making no objection, however, to the presence of the British fleet in the Golden Horn during her tenancy of the city. But to this the Porte is unwilling to accede, and the news of last night's proceedings in the British Parliament will undoubtedly strengthen it in its resolve. Preparations for the defence of the city and of the lines of Gallipoli are being actively prosecuted, and the Ottoman fleet has been ordered to Balaia.

Monday.

It is now announced that the preliminaries of peace have been signed, and that the Grand Duke Nicholas and the Turkish plenipotentiaries were to have arrived at Adrianople on Saturday. As given by the London Post, the conditions of peace include the autonomy of Bulgaria, Bosnia, and Herzegovina, the independence of Servia and Roumania, with an accession of territory to each—the latter ceding to Russia the region at the mouth of the Danube; the aggrandisement of Montenegro; the session of Batum and the payment of a war indemnity, and an arrangement with the Porte by which the latter will undertake to protect Russian interests in the matter of the passage of the Dardanelles.

A despatch from Constantinople says in consequence of not receiving the countermarching order in time, the British fleet sailed from Besika Bay and passed through the Dardanelles. The shore batteries saluted the English flag as the vessels passed. The fleet is now proceeding to Constantinople. The above despatch has created a decided sensation in official circles in London.

A later despatch from Constantinople says the fleet stopped at the mouth of the Dardanelles, and orders being received, it will return to Besika Bay.

Intense excitement prevails in Greece over the news of the conclusion of peace. Riotous demonstrations in favour of war have been held at Athens, where a crowd of over ten thousand persons broke the windows of the Ministers' residence. The Chamber in secret session has resolved to support the insurrection in Thessaly and Crete.

Groundless Objections.

Some having tried "put up" medicine without obtaining the relief promised, indiscriminately condemn them. Is this fair? Suppose a judge should argue that because the last three prisoners had been found guilty, he should condemn the fourth without trial. Is not such reasoning absurd? And yet are not those who condemn all medicine, because they have been deceived in one or two cases, condemning the good medicine?
